PROSECUTION READY TO WEAVE A STRONG
WEB ABOUT WOOD*Court Ruling Not to Let Woolen Trust Go Free,
Is Claim.*OUTSIDE CONFIRMATION NEEDED*Explosive Expert Occupies Stand At Morning in Trial of Magnate Accused of Having Dynamite "Planted" to Discredit Striking Textile Workers.

United Press Telegram.
PORTON, May 21.—Connection between John W. Wood, the Cambridge dock funder, who admitted placing dynamite at various points about Lawrence during the recent textile strike in an effort to discredit the labor organization, will have to be shown by the state through independent sources, if the case against President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company and Frederick A. Atteaux is to be continued. This decision was reached this morning as the result of a ruling made by the court.

Following the decision, the prosecution announced that the connection will be established through the means of checks and vouchers exchanged between the pair, and that the connection shown will be a strong one.

The first witness on the stand this morning was Walter L. Whitney, an expert on explosives who has been connected with the Boston fire department for more than 25 years. He testified that he had examined the dynamite shown him by the militia who secured the explosive "planted" about Lawrence by Green and Collins, and that there was a sufficient quantity in the case about him to cause a large number of deaths and wreck a great many buildings. He said that the dynamite dropped by Green at the Lawrence station was of enough strength to kill every one in the immediate vicinity. The militia who carried the explosive did not let go when Green dropped it, as it was frozen too solidly.

A slight shiver went up the backs of some of the more timid court attendants when Whitney drew from a pocket three sticks of dynamite. A visible pallor that spread over the faces of the jurors, disappeared when the witness explained that the sticks were made of wood, wrapped with dynamite coverings.

Using the three sticks as examples, Whitney explained the danger of dynamite. He went into the subject rather deeply and was on the stand the greater part of the morning. Both Wood and Atteaux followed the testimony of the witness very carefully.

Green was the next witness to take the stand. His testimony was somewhat similar to that given by Collins yesterday, and in few details did he vary from the story related by his alleged accomplice.

Green told of meeting Pittman and Atteaux in the latter's office, where plans for the planting of dynamite about Lawrence were discussed. As Green was leaving the office he said Atteaux asked him if he was short of money.

"Yes," I replied, "I will have considerable expense in carrying out the plan." Atteaux then told me to meet him at the corner of Franklin and Washington streets at 6 o'clock, when he would give me plenty of cash.

"Just before we parted," Atteaux asked if I was on good terms with any of the policemen. I replied that I was. I told him that I was well acquainted with Inspector Rooney of the Boston police. Upon receiving this information, Atteaux ordered me to get in communication with him as soon as the explosive were placed and inform him that the strikers had hidden the dynamite about the mills."

Green testified that after this conversation with Atteaux he went to Boston, where he secured the dynamite. While there he made an effort to get in touch with Inspector Rooney, but was unable to find him. Later he met Collins and told him that there was a job for him in Lawrence. Collins wanted to know what it was and the witness informed that it was to plant dynamite about the town so as to cast suspicion on the strikers. Collins agreed to join him in the undertaking, he said.

After returning to Lawrence, Green called Rooney on the telephone and told him that he had knowledge that dynamite had been placed about Lawrence. The finding of the "planted" explosives followed.

The witness then told how he had been paid $500 for the job. He said he met Atteaux in accordance with the latter's instructions. He said that he was standing on the street corner at Franklin and Washington streets, when Atteaux drove up in a taxicab. As he approached the witness he leaned from the window and dropped a newspaper in which was $500.

Later Atteaux explained that he took that method of paying him so that suspicion could not possibly become attached to him, the witness said.

Who's Smith? His Name's Dennis! for, You See, Miss Susanne Carroll, Southern Beauty, Will Wed "J. H."

BALTIMORE, May 21.—Miss Susanne Carroll, a noted southern beauty, to whom Robert W. Chambers dedicated his recent novel, "The Gay Rebellion," is going to marry. The lucky man is Major John Philip Hill, United States district attorney for Maryland. The engagement has just been announced. "When Mr. Chambers dedicated his book to Miss Carroll he wrote, 'Though I, J. H., her and 'Smith' incline to frown, I do not fear, for you, Susanne, have long since won my heart.' Everybody now knows that 'J. H.' is Major Hill, but the mystery of 'Smith' still remains. Of course, it doesn't make much difference now who 'Smith' is. His name is Dennis anyway. The wedding will take place in June and will be of interest not only to Baltimore and New York society, but also to many people in Europe, where Miss Carroll spent her girlhood. Miss Carroll is a grand daughter of Mrs. Tucker Carroll, with whom she has made her home in New York city the last few winters. She is also a great-granddaughter of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Major Hill is a graduate of Harvard, a member of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati, the Maryland Club and the Metropolitan Club of Washington.

BLAME RAILROAD MAN FOR
HEADWAY GAINED BY FIRE*Refused to Stop Cars Over Scales
When B. & O. Men Seek to Put Out Blaze.

While the occupants were away from home last night, the dwelling occupied by Mrs. Kate Ketter on Arch street was destroyed by fire of an unknown origin. When the fire started in one of the downstairs rooms, and before being discovered had gained considerable headway.

The fire was discovered by an employee of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, who turned in an alarm to the railroad firemen. When the latter attempted to cross the tracks at the scale house with their hose they were forbidden to do so by one of the officials, who refused to stop running cars across the scales while the firemen crossed the track. The firemen laid two lines of hose across the track which were cut to pieces by freight cars.

In the meantime the blaze had communicated to the upper stories, and soon the building was a mass of flames. An alarm was turned in the borough fire department, but when the chemical auto arrived, the house was beyond saving, and the firemen devoted their efforts toward saving the buildings in the neighborhood. This morning Chief Haddock reported to the Baltimore & Ohio officials the action of the official in the yard last night, who refused to permit the company firemen to fight the blaze. Chief Haddock thinks the building could have been saved had the firemen been permitted to fight the blaze when it was first discovered. It is understood that the insurance agent will also file a protest in behalf of the company which must meet the loss. The house was owned by V. H. Soisson.

Through the summer months it is the intention of the band to give concerts each Monday evening.

Not Affect Conditions
Here.*SALARIED OFFICERS HOLD OVER*Upper Applies Only to Those Who Re-

Shark Bill Passes the Senate but House Must Approve Changes Made.

Special to The Courier.
HARRISBURG, May 21.—The Clark bill providing a commission form of government for cities of the third class has been reported to the House by a subcommittee named to draft certain amendments. The amendments made in committee do not affect conditions here, if the measure becomes a law.

The bill has been changed to permit mayors, controllers and other salaried officers of third-class cities to continue in office until the first Monday of the following January.

In Connellsville the borough officials are serving until their successors qualify, the terms of Burgess Evans and other officers having expired. The Clark bill has also been amended so that present mayors of third-class cities may succeed themselves.

The Loan-Shark Bill, passed the Senate yesterday. The maximum charge permitted is 2 per cent a month, or 24 per cent a year. The House bill permitted a charge of 2 per cent a month, or 25 per cent a year, and the measure goes back to the lower body for concurrence. Lawyers are expected to appear before the House.

The bill which will make it possible for any person to force the abatement of disorderly houses by prosecuting them as nuisances has passed the Senate and is now in the Governor's hands.

The Public Utilities bill, now in the Senate, may be amended in several important particulars. Senator Crow yesterday conferred with Governor Teller in regard to suggested changes and it is expected the administration will work in harmony with the Senate leaders to make the bill more efficient. It passed first reading this afternoon.

Among the hospital appropriations recommended to the House was that of $27,500 for the Mount Pleasant Memorial.

Through the efforts of George Allen the bill introduced by Representative John L. Post, Washington County, requiring recorders of deeds to keep all deeds on file in a separate book, was defeated on that passage in the House, 34 to 35. Representative Allen declared it "none of the public's business" what deeds and mortgages were in the recorder's office.

The Snyder bill to safeguard certain rights of owners of real estate, or color or descent, on final passage for yesterday, was postponed in the Senate by request of Mr. Hoke of Franklin, who explained that he wanted to obtain the views of his constituents.

The regular and Independent Republicans on the Senate election committee agreed today to report the bills now pending. The Democrats then announced they would not press the resolution asking that the committee be discharged from further consideration of the measures.

Senator Bidleman this morning made a bitter attack on Vance McCormick, proprietor of a Harrisburg newspaper. He asserted that McCormick knew when he was elected mayor of Harrisburg in 1911 that a fund of $22,000 had been collected to secure his election. He asserted that the money was carried to McCormick's office in a waste basket.

TRAFFIC RULES FOR MAIN STREETS ARE
PLAN OF COUNCIL*Members Propose to End
Blockades Caused by Vehicles.*15 MINUTES THE TIME LIMIT*Informal Discussion in Committee Meeting Expected to Result in Ordinance Which Will Benefit
Pedestrians and Eliminate Dangers.

Regulation of vehicle traffic on Main and Pittsburg streets is expected at an early meeting of Town Council following the informal discussion of the matter among several members following the police committee's session last night. Complaints have been made that the south side of Main street, from Madison lane to Brimstone Corner, and Pittsburg street from Main to Orchard alley, are almost constantly blocked by automobiles and wagons. The principal objection is made against automobile owners who have business down town and turn the streets into an open-air garage.

Borough Clerk A. O. Rikler was directed to examine the ordinances with a view to determining whether Council has power to act without passing a new ordinance. If existing laws do not cover the matter it is expected an ordinance will be introduced.

Members of Council who discussed the matter were of opinion that an ordinance should be put in force that would prohibit any vehicle from standing along Main or Pittsburg streets for a period longer than 15 minutes at one time.

Several firms along Main street load their delivery wagons from the front of the stores, but the councilmen point out that this should be accomplished within 15 minutes without imposing any hardship upon the firms concerned.

However, the objection has not been so much against the business houses as it has been against automobile owners who permit their cars to remain for hours at a time along the street.

On Saturday nights, a solid bank of automobiles extend along the Main street block, and well down Pittsburg street. Councilmen believe that this is dangerous, because in event of a fire in the business district, the firemen would be seriously handicapped. There is further danger on Main street because of the street cars. The automobiles not only obstruct view of approaching cars, but they leave little space for traffic when cars are passing.

EXPLOSION AN ACCIDENT*Coroner's Jury Unable to Determine Cause of Francis Accident.

That the explosion of the powder magazine at the Francis No. 1 plant of the Sunshine Coal & Coke Company on May 10, when Henry Baffa was killed and more than 25 others injured, was an accident, from an unknown cause, was the verdict of the coroner's jury which conducted the inquest at Jacontown last night.

Several witnesses were examined but none of them could explain any probable cause. No one was seen to enter the magazine, or was believed to have been in it at the time.

The jury was composed of Joseph B. Honsaker, James Hague, R. B. Hayes, E. D. Longenecker, Rev. E. W. Dietrick and Frank J. Connell. Coroner Bell had charged.

H. B. Fymoy, manager of the company store at Francis No. 1, Frank Crossland, a driver, and George Barclay, assistant superintendent, were examined.

FAMOUS DISTILLERY BURNS*Extent of Fire at Bill Pritts' Place is Not Yet Known.

A serious fire caused damage to the Bill Pritts distillery in Saitlick township last night. Because the Tri-State Telephone Company's test station located in the saleroom of the distillery, was burned, communication is cut off.

It was reported today that several hundred barrels of whiskey had been destroyed, together with the dwelling of Bill and Hannah Pritts. Former Sheriff P. A. Johns, who is interested in the distillery, went to Indian Head today to look over the situation. Last night he estimated the loss at $2,000, there being no insurance.

Bill Pritts is Western Pennsylvania's most famous character, having for years been a "moonshiner." After a losing fight against the revenue officers he finally decided to operate a legal distillery and the Bill Pritts Distilling Company resulted.

Steadiness of nerve and mental alertness are both essential to success. Thinking people exercise a wise discrimination as to where they eat and drink. It has been proven by exhaustive tests that good, high grade coffee is excellent for keeping the system in order. Good coffee has a mildly stimulating effect that is not followed by depression. "BREAKFAST CUP" coffee, composed of selected berries from the finest crops, makes an ideal drink for breakfast or luncheon. A rich creamy flavor and a delicate aroma, all its own, have secured for "BREAKFAST CUP" coffee the best of enthusiastic users. Your grocer will make you a member of this happy band.—Adv.

Writes Personal Letter to Her Druggists About a Bad Cough.

Mrs. Howard Wagner of Milton, Pa., writes her druggists as follows: "For two months I suffered from a bad cold, from which I could get no relief, then I began to cough and would cough until midnight every night. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine, but without benefit. One day seeing Vinol, your cold liver and iron medicine advertised in my paper, I sent for a bottle. After taking the second day I did not cough so much and felt stronger, and at the end of a week I could go to bed and sleep without coughing once. I have never felt better in my life. I have a fine appetite and have gained twelve pounds. As Vinol has helped me so much I want others to know about it." ## TO PANAMA IN 1915.

Many People From Here Will Go to the Opening of the Canal.

A few weeks ago the Youth Trust Company pointed out an easy way to accumulate the funds for a trip through the Panama Canal and a visit to the Panama Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915. Since then a great many people have begun to save for the trip, by depositing a dollar or more every week in a Savings account. This will give them ample funds. There will be many Excursions and Personally Conducted Tours through the Canal and on to the Exposition, at greatly reduced prices. In the meantime "The Youth" pays 4% compound interest on the money and, when the Tourists are ready to start, will assist them in making all arrangements for the journey.—Adv.

She will in fact be the poster girl for the festival which will be held here in October next to celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific coast by Vasco Nunez de Balboa.

Born in Los Angeles March 23, 1888, and educated there and at the Santa Monica High School, Miss De Velasco has lived in San Francisco since 1905. She is a musician of ability and has sung at many private concerts. She is a business girl, too, being private secretary to one of the most important lumber dealers of the Pacific Coast.

BARNES ON FORCE

Pinnacle Butcher Succeeds Humphries, Fired by Committee.

Patrolman J. D. Humphries was dismissed from the police department and John H. Barnes of Sydnortown was appointed his successor at a meeting of the police committee last night. Humphries was suspended from the force Monday when it was charged that he used profane language to Councilman John F. Kesser while on duty Saturday.

The dismissed officer is one of the new patrolmen employed three months ago. He came to Connelville from Clanton. In response to a request from Captain Duggan of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie detective force, Humphries went to Pittsburg yesterday. He was offered a position to join the railroad detectives June 1, which he will probably do.

John Barnes, Humphries' successor, is a butcher employed on the Pinnacle. He will go on duty tonight.

Aside from the Humphries case, the committee considered a report of neglect of duty preferred against another officer. It was charged that the patrolman spent last Friday evening in South Connelville, instead of remaining on duty in town. When one of the councilmen requested an explanation of him, the officer excused himself by saying that he became homesick and was unable to find his way back to city hall until 6:30 Saturday morning. Action was deferred.

HELP YOUR KIDNEYS.

It's a mighty good thing for people with weak kidneys that A. A. Clark is selling the newest discovery—Ames Kidney Pills.

They banish the misery of backache, slouching, shooting pains in such a short time that users are astonished. Wallace Bryant of Steubenville, N. Y., writes:

"For a long time I have been troubled with pains in my back over my kidneys, my urine was a deep red. I have been taking Ames Kidney Pills for this trouble and am now a well man."

Your kidneys get clogged just the same as your liver, a few doses of Ames Kidney Pills, will drive out all impure matter. 50 cents. A. A. Clark guarantees them. Ames Chemical Co., Corry, Pa.—Advertisement.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25c per box.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

"He Must Have a Bell Telephone"

To be without a Bell Telephone is to be woefully handicapped. To have no Bell Telephone in the home is to close the door to friends; in business, to bar the door to opportunity.

The words: "See if they're in the telephone book," have become as universal as the Bell Telephone itself—and to be thus sought and found is to your advantage and decided gain.

The cost of the service is negligibly low when you consider what you may do, where you may go, by simply lifting your telephone receiver.

"Clincher" Paint

We know a paint which holds to the wood like a driven nail. Seasoned lumber is porous. The pores are the empty sap-cells. White-lead paint, which dries on the wood in the form of a solid, elastic film, fastens into these pores; and the whole coat of paint is actually riveted like armor-plate to the surface it decorates and protects.

COLD IN THE HEAD.

Its Constant Recurrence May Not Only Be Serious, But Fatal.

There are all kinds of colds. Spring, summer, autumn and winter, all furnish the means for a cold. In medical literature there is no such disease described as a "cold," yet almost everybody is more or less susceptible to this condition.

The writer used to suffer with "cold" in the head, throat, windpipe, bronchial tubes, stomach and bowels. That was before he learned that an abundance of fresh air—day and night, air—was absolutely necessary to build up a high state of physical vigor and vitality to avoid "taking cold."

The most common form of this complaint is a cold in the head. In this condition there is an inflammation of the mucous membranes which line the nasal chamber. This is naturally self-limiting. Nature allows the disease to run its course, when recovery spontaneously takes place. This condition may be very mild, yet the constant "taking cold" may result in great damage and lead to fatal diseases.

The nasal cavities have direct connection with the eyes, ears, throat, lungs, stomach and bowels. When frequent colds, inflammation or congestion occurs in these vital parts and the "germs" or "dirt" which is the direct cause of the trouble overcomes the "glacier" in the blood and membranes the "germ" or "dirt" is carried to one or all of the organs or parts of the body and may result in some disease that terminates fatally.—Professor George A. Keene in Health.

ADD STRINGS TO YOUR BOW.

And Keep on Broadening Your Sphere of Usefulness.

Ages ago some one found music in the twang of a bowstring, then another some one put two strings on a bow, and thus was made the first harp. String after string was added until the harp was too heavy to hold. Then they put it in a box and struck the strings with hammers worked by keys. They called that a harpsichord. It was the first piano. The finest and most costly pianos of today is just an evolution, just an improvement on the arrow shooting bow.

From the history of the piano comes the old, old saying, "He is adding strings to his bow." It means that one is evolving, improving something. It expresses caution, persistency, energy, enterprise.

Add strings to your bow—one at a time. Bring a new note into each week of work. Learn a little something new and useful. Thus you will increase the harmony and effectiveness of your work.

Anything that has evolved as the bow has can never stop improving. So with your work. The more simple the start the greater the possibilities of growth. Know your work from the very first string. Know that there is no limit to its possibilities.

Keep adding strings to your bow, harp, piano—Joel Blank in Philadelphia Ledger.

Short Lived Giants.

Giants are notably short lived, and instances where men much above average feet in height have reached the age of fifty years are almost unknown.

Length of days does not go with excessive length of limb. But statures which stop short of giantism usually is a sign of vitality. Tall recruits in continental armies, provided they are of proper weight, give least trouble from sickness and gain most from physical training. It must be remembered in this connection that "tallness" is not the same everywhere. Men accounted tall in southern Italy would be rather short in western Scotland or among the native stock of America. It is as if nature had fixed a standard height for each race and punished by some physical shortcoming those who varied much from that standard in either direction.—Chicago Journal.

Earthworms For Rheumatism.

Your paragraph, writes a correspondent, giving is a cure for rheumatism, a bug of earthworms on the chest, reminds me of a prescription I heard of thirty years ago, given also "in all seriousness" in Stuttgart market place, as a remedy for rheumatism. In this case, too, the earthworms formed one of the constituents, but it was necessary to put them into a bottle and pour upon them a quantity of powdered quicklime. The resultant compound, well rubbed into the affected parts, was guaranteed by the prescriber to be a certain cure for rheumatism.—London Chronicle.

"Stagger" Oil.

From the beginning of September until November a small fish called stickleback is caught in considerable quantities off the island of Dunamunde, at the mouth of the Dwina river, in the gulf of Riga, and also near the island of Smolga, in the Dwina river, near Dunaburg, Russia. The fishermen make an oil from this fish which is very useful in the leather and harness industry as a preservative. The name of this fish is "Stickle" in German, the common name is "kussene," and in some communities it is called "stagger."

Another "Biggest Ship."

A British shipbuilding firm is constructing for the White Star line another "biggest ship." It is to be called the Britannic and will be launched next fall or winter. It will be 887 feet long and 94 feet high. It is in breadth while not as long as the Aquitania, recently launched, it will be 4,000 tons heavier and in that respect also will be greater than the immense German liner Imperator.

TELLS OF POOLS

Carnegie Got $100,000 for Staying Out of Glider Market.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Charles M. Schwab resumed the witness stand for further cross-examination by government counsel in the suit to dissolve the United States Steel Corporation. He asked permission to correct the testimony he had given that the Illinois Steel Company and the Carnegie Steel Company, subsidiaries of the so-called trust, were competitors before they were absorbed. He said today that the Illinois company manufactured "only small parts" and was not a competitor of the Carnegie company.

Mr. Dickinson asked about pool agreements on rails in 1937. Schwab admitted that the Carnegie Steel Company, of which he was then president, had agreements of that kind. Dickinson read a minute which set forth that English rail manufacturers proposed to allot 100,000 tons of rails to the Carnegie company in England and Canada.

"You say you never heard of an international steel rail pool. What was that?" he asked. "Oh, that didn't appeal to me," Schwab said. "It was not big enough. I never considered the proposition."

"There were pools going on all the time, wasn't there?" "Yes."

"But when the Steel Corporation was formed?" "They wanted to stay."

Another minute read by Mr. Dickinson indicated that the Carnegie company agreed to stay out of the glider rail market for one year for $100,000.

"We stayed out chiefly because we were not in a condition to compete," Schwab said, but we put up a good front and got the $100,000."

In refutation of Schwab's testimony that one of the principal objects of the organization of the steel corporation was to develop the export trade, Mr. Dickinson read statistics showing that more steel had been exported in the two years previous to the corporation's organization than during the first two years afterward.

REFERENDUM VOTE ON ANTI-PAW LAW MAY AID WILSON.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 17.—Theodore A. Bell, one of the Democratic leaders of the state threatened to circulate a petition for a referendum vote for the Webb anti-alien land bill passed by the Legislature. This is the only rift in the sky as far as the state was concerned after Governor Johnson had wired to Secretary Bryan that he would sign the bill despite the plea for delay on the part of President Wilson. Bell claims a popular vote on the bill would be justified to show how the people of California feel on the anti-Jap legislation. It is believed that the vote would be overwhelmingly in favor of the new law, but such action would hold up the effectiveness of the law for the time being, thus gaining the delay for which the administration has asked.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Your undertakings will succeed as a direct result of your intelligent handling of the materials at hand. Your year will be active and generally happy, but some friend will disappoint you.

These born today will have the power and will to win high positions. As their chief danger will come from blindly following some cause to their own disadvantage, they should be taught from the first to reason out things for themselves and to note the results of acting on their own responsibility.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dressing himself with invalid patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, up-building, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quickly and quietly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3000 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $2.00 to $3.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.—Adv.

Will Appear in Mill Town
First Methodist Church on June Second.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY

Speakers Engaged for the Occasion at the Owensdale United Brethren
Church on Next Saturday; Eastern District Gets a Bishop; Other Notes.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 21.—Rev. John A. Davis of Davis and Mills, the evangelist, who held successful religious campaigns in the towns of this vicinity, and who was here recently, will be in Scottdale to lecture, on Monday evening, June 2, according to arrangements made this week.
The First Methodist Episcopal Church has been secured for this lecture, which will be on the subject of "Possibilities." The lecture will be under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor League of that church, and will draw the people, as Mr. Davis has a host of friends in this locality, who will be anxious and glad to hear him once more.
Mr. Davis has recovered the use of his voice, after a season of hospital treatment, and is now supplying the church at Cortland, N. Y., and is very busy. He delivered an address at the Carnegie Music Hall, Bradford, a few weeks ago, and has spoken at a number of other places in this section, all of which he was greeted by large audiences.

C. E. RALLY.
The Christian Endeavor Society of the Owensdale United Brethren Church will have special rally day services at that church, of which Rev. J. J. Funk of Scottdale, is the pastor, on Saturday. There will be services at 2:30 and 7:30 P. M., and in the evening a hymn will be sung on the lawn of the church for all those present. The speakers engaged at this time are Rev. S. J. Showers of Youngwood, Rev. B. J. Hummel of Everett, Rev. C. W. Hendrickson of Scottdale, Attorney P. P. Rush of Uniontown, and Rev. A. M. Davies of Youngwood. There is an active society at Owensdale of which L. H. Rush is president, and quite a profitable time is looked for.

BUILD A HOUSE.
Lawrence Taylor is building a new two-story house for himself, opposite the Mount Nebo United Brethren Church. Mr. Taylor owns a fine plot of six acres there and is putting up a very handsome home for himself.

AT CONVENTION.
Albert Keister and J. W. Ruth have been attending the General Conference of the United Brethren Church at Decatur, Illinois, with Rev. C. W. Hendrickson, pastor of the Scottdale church, one of the visitors to the meeting. A new bishop has been given this district, in the person of Dr. William Weekley. The eastern district has not had a bishop since the death of Dr. J. S. Mills, about four years ago. Other bishops of the church attending to the duties in this district, Bishop Weekley will move into the district, probably to Ansville, which was the home of Bishop Keister and Bishop Mills.

MacMillan Prepares for Dash Into Frozen Top of the World to Solve Earth's Final Puzzle

DONALD B. MACMILLAN WHO WILL SEEK NEW CONTINENT IN ARCTIC

NEW YORK, May 21.—Donald B. MacMillan is getting ready for his dash into the icy fastness of the Arctic, to solve the only remaining mystery of old mother earth's top crust. He will endeavor to explore Crater Land, the supposed continent sighted by Peary from Cape Thomas in 1894. When the expedition party sails from Sydney, N. S. W., on the whaler Bluma in July, under the leadership of MacMillan, the expedition will include a seismograph and a complete wireless outfit in their equipment, which will be thoroughly up-to-date. Electricity will also be utilized for lighting, cooking the meals and heating in the remote regions of the far north. The object of the expedition is to discover and explore the unknown area north of the present map of the Arctic regions and, if conditions are favorable, to penetrate the Greenland ice cap. MacMillan was with Peary on his dash to the north pole.

PITY THE POOR SISTERS

Missionary from Asia Is Here to Raise $2,000 Ransom.

A foreigner claiming to be a missionary from Asia is in town today endeavoring to collect sufficient funds, he says, to make up the necessary $2,000 ransom for which his two sisters are being held by the Kurds in his native land.

Although he admits being in America only three weeks, he speaks English fluently, but accounts for the accomplishment by saying that he attended English schools in Asia. When asked why he didn't appeal to his government to rescue his sisters instead of pursuing the more laborious way of collecting the ransom, the man declared that it wouldn't be of any use for him to ask aid of the government. "They're in league with the Kurds," he said.

GUTHRIE CONFIRMED

FRIEDMANN "CURE" MUST NOT BE DEPENDENT ON, GOVERNMENT SAYS

Report of Experts Is Unfavorable to Turtle Serum For Tuberculosis.

Sufferers Advised to Continue Use of Recognized Remedies For the Present.

THE government's first official report on Dr. Friedrich Fraum's "cure" for tuberculosis is not favorable to the German physician, whose declaration that he had a cure for the white plague was received with joy by thousands.

The report, which is based on findings of experts of the United States public health service, was read at the annual meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The association met in Washington.

The report in effect warns the public against placing too much confidence in the Friedmann serum and advises tuberculosis sufferers to continue the regulation treatment prescribed by the best physicians today.

The opinion of the experts was announced after they had investigated thoroughly ninety-four cases of tuberculosis treated by Dr. Friedmann in New York. The result of the serum treatment in those cases "does not justify the confidence in this remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity," in the language of the report.

This first official opinion from the government authorities was accepted at once by the association as just grounds for the passage of a resolution warning the people against being misled by unproved claims.

Dr. Charles L. Minor of Asheville, N. C., opposed the action on the ground that it was not strong enough in condemning Dr. Friedmann and his methods.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution finally adopted by the association, which is composed of physicians and others who have been leading in the crusade against the white plague in this country, is:

Whereas, widespread publicity has been given to the claims of an alleged cure for tuberculosis;

Resolved, That there is no information before the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to justify the belief that any specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered which deserves the confidence of the medical profession or the people;

Resolved, That it is the duty of the public to continue unabated all the present well tried agencies for the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis;

The government's report was read by Dr. John F. Anderson, chairman of the board appointed to investigate the "cure." In his statement he detailed the history of Dr. Friedmann's visit to this country and the government's negotiations with him. Dr. Anderson said that Dr. Friedmann willingly furnished a culture of the organism in his serum, but declined to divulge the method of its use in the preparation of the remedy and would make no definite statement as to the antecedents of the culture.

Dr. Anderson paid a high tribute to the authorities of the New York hospital for their assistance in impartially conducting the investigations. Up to April 15 ninety-four patients received the first injection, and it then became necessary to inform Dr. Friedmann that on account of the halting progress in the demonstration the board was forced to limit its studies to three patients.

Few Second Treatments.

Dr. Friedmann was informed also that in the interest of the demonstration these patients should be seen by him with a view to giving such additional injections as are deemed necessary to effect a cure. Up to the time the report was prepared only five of these patients had received a second injection. The report concludes:

"We believe that at the present time we are not in a position to express an opinion based on the present condition of patients under observation."

"The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is characterized by periods of advancement and retrogression. It is also one in which psychic influences are a powerful factor."

"Time is therefore necessary in order to properly evaluate the effect of therapeutic measures."

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of the preparation, and, on the other hand, it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. Without presenting in detail the condition of patients under observation we are in a position to state that the effects thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity."

"In our opinion, harm may have been done by this undue publicity in so far as it has lessened the confidence of tuberculosis persons in well recognized methods of treatment or interrupted their use, and we are constrained to advise against any lessening of those well known measures which not only have effected cures, but which have reduced the incidence of the disease."

"We are aware that Dr. Friedmann does not wish to be judged scientifically on newspaper statements, and he would undoubtedly decline responsibility for certain of those which have appeared. Nevertheless it is on those that the public bases its opinion until replaced by reliable and unbiased scientific pronouncements, supported by convincing data."

Dr. Minor, in discussing the question, said that he was told that this treatment came to America not through medical and scientific channels, but through a commercial publicity enterprise. He said that the fact that the "cure" had been introduced with commercialism was sufficient for the association to make a stand to protect the public.

"We know how much misery already has been produced," said Dr. Minor, "by the announcement of the cure—the high hopes that have been raised and surely disappointed, the poor sufferers who have committed suicide through their failure to get the treatment. So, in my opinion, this pseudo scientific remedy cannot be too severely shown up."

General Sternberg, former surgeon general of the army, moved the adoption of the resolution, declaring it to be prudent and said there was no evidence to justify a final decision.

Voters For Resolution.

Among those voting for the resolution were Dr. Meyer of Mount Sinai hospital, New York city, in both of which institutions Friedmann patients are being observed by the government; Dr. Perkins of Providence, R. I., whose patients were treated by Dr. Friedmann; and Dr. Baldwin of Saranac Lake, N. Y., who, it is said, experimented with the Friedmann serum and discarded it ten years ago.

Dr. Friedmann was unconcerned, according to the New York Sun, when the report from Washington was read to him in New York city. He let it be known that he did not intend to worry over a preliminary report, which he thought was premature.

The Berlin doctor at that was inclined to disbelieve that Dr. Anderson had made an adverse report. He said that Dr. Simpson of the public health service, whom he met at the Seton hospital, told him that it was very unlikely that such a statement would come from Dr. Anderson. When he finally did comprehend what the Washington officials had said he said:

"There is nothing to say to that. It is not the final report, which will be different. I don't see that Dr. Anderson has made any attack upon my remedy. What he does say is not positive one way or the other. And what is this National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis? I do not know it."

Further attempts to get Dr. Friedmann to express himself on government officials' attitude were fruitless. He seemed to regard the matter as insignificant.

Then he was asked what he thought of the claims of Professor Max Piorowski of Berlin regarding the latter's turtle culture for tuberculosis. Dr. Friedmann said that he had read the stories about it and added:

"That does not interest me. I will deny, though, that Piorowski ever worked in my laboratory or that we ever worked together. He did not get his turtle vaccine from me any more than I got mine from him. If he has worked independently and got a cure why all right."

Dr. Friedmann was just as uninterested when told that Dr. William Benthie was coming to America with enough of the Piorowski vaccine for the injection of a thousand patients.

"All right; let him come with enough for a million," he said.

This interview took place just after Dr. Friedmann had returned to New York city from Canada, where he treated some patients. He said he was very well pleased with the progress all his patients were making.

Talks of Patients.

"I went to Canada to look after my patients. I have come back here to look after my patients. My first cure when I came back here is my patients. And they are doing just as I expected, the same improvement that has been seen everywhere," he said.

Physicians of Frankfurt, Germany, interviewed recently by a correspondent of the New York Times, declared that patients Dr. Friedmann treated at the Frankfurt Municipal hospital more than four months ago had not shown any beneficial effects from the turtle serum.

Professor Paul Ehrlich, discoverer of salvarsan, was also seen by the correspondent at the Royal Institute of Medical Therapeutics. He advised against judging Dr. Friedmann's remedy too quickly and defended Dr. Friedmann's course in selling the American rights to his serum.

In part Professor Ehrlich's comment was:

"Dr. Friedmann struck me as an earnest young man. His stance, his manner, his speech, his bearing, his whole person, was of a man of unimpeachable standing, whose support of any cause must demand for it serious consideration at the hands of the medical profession. If my tests of the Friedmann vaccine are somewhat delayed it will be partly because I have no human material at my disposal for experimental purposes and must confine my work to animals."

STARVATION IMPROVES MIND.

This is Conclusion of Thirty Day Test at Carnegie Laboratory.

Morality and eyesight are improved by starvation. As the body gets weaker from the exhaustion of starving the mind increases in strength and activity.

These are the conclusions arrived at by the scientists who conducted the extraordinary psychological test upon Agostino Levanzini in the Carnegie nutrition laboratory at Boston, which attracted widespread notice last year. The report was made by Professor Herbert Sydney Langfeld.

Levanzini was kept in a calorimeter, a collimated box, for thirty days, and during that time was given a pint and a half of water each day to sustain life. Finally he left the place in a half dazed condition and was sent to a convalescent hospital to recover.

Tests were taken two days previous to the beginning of the fast and were continued up to one day following. The tests were in having the man repeat lists of words from memory, having him look at a series of letters, give them from memory and similar psychological experiments.

SUBWAY CLAY FOR ROSES.

Paris Gardener Discovers Flowers Grow Finest In It.

The beauty of the rose has been enhanced greatly by a new soil treatment recently discovered in an odd manner. When the first excavations were made for the Paris subway a gardener carried away a few loads of the clay dumpings. He tried roses on the soil thus procured, and to his amazement they grew finer than in the highly prized clays.

Since then there has been a great demand from rose growers for subway clay. The roses grown on this soil have been dubbed "subway roses." They have extraordinary vivid colors and exquisite odor and are taking all prizes at the horticultural shows.

Owns His Whole Country.

Prince Henry XXVII, the new ruler of the German principality of Reuss, has the distinction of being the only ruler in the world who owns all the land he governs. Prince Henry owns every acre of land and every building in the principality, which has an area of 319 square miles. He is a lieutenant in the German navy, having attained that rank by his own efforts.

The Shift Sartorial

Farewell, my coat, whose fair unwrinkled grace Has been my joy and passion! Despite your honored age I must replace You for some newer fashion.

Farewell, my wondrous waistcoat! In your prime You rivaled autumn's glory. Of hue a masterpiece, of cut sublime. You're now "another story!"

And you, my third essential, who have toiled Time's iron on your creases, Although I hate to strike below the belt, From now your service ceases.

Farewell! Like champions your comings and goings have been beaten. Come forth, my summer clothes of yore—taryar! Great Scott! They're all moth eaten!—La Touche Hancock in New York Sun.

ALIEN LAND LAW ON ILLINOIS STATUTE BOOKS.

How a Wealthy Irishman Caused It to Be Passed.

Interest aroused in California and in the United States generally on the question of an alien land law has called attention to the fact that Illinois has had an alien land law on its statute books for many years. It limits the time during which an alien may hold title to land in the state to six years.

If at the end of six years the alien owner has not become naturalized or has not transferred the land to a bona fide purchaser the state attorney of the county in which the land is located under the law must proceed by information in the name of the people of the state to compel a sale of the land.

The Illinois alien land law was passed at a time when the state, especially Logan county, had become aroused because of the large land holdings of "Lord" William Scott, a Tipperary native and a widely known Irish land owner.

Scully owned 27,000 acres of land in Logan county. He also bought 47,000 acres in other parts of the state, besides 200,000 to 300,000 acres in Kansas, the Dakotas, Montana and Idaho. Scully obtained his land in Illinois by having passed an enabling act.

The result of agitation that followed was the passage of the alien land law by the state. Unsuccessful attempts to have the law repealed were made.

Scully finally had to have one of his sons take out naturalization papers in order not to lose his holdings in Illinois. A grandson of the Irish landowner now lives in Peoria. Scully died in London in October, 1900.

Also a Great Master.

The persons in the gallery who were most impressed with the J. Pierpont Morgan collection of pictures were two small girls, one eight and the other ten years of age. Uncertainly they spelled out the names of the paintings, which conveyed very little, and they were truly moved, of course, by the dashing Duchess of Devonshire and the small princess of Velazquez, and the wonderfully engaging young lady by the unknown Spanish painter. Lastly they came to the portrait of Mr. Morgan himself, and from this they appealed directly to the attendant on guard.

"Please, sir," they asked, "did Mr. Morgan paint all these pictures?" The guard was a true gentleman. "Not all," he answered.—New York Post.

Visible Sound Waves.

Curious luminous circles or arcs, delicate and perfect in form, have been seen over the craters of Vesuvius and Etna—one at each explosion. A study of this strange phenomenon has been made by Mr. Frank A. Perret, who has witnessed it hundreds of times, and he concludes that these "fishing arcs," as he calls them, are really sound waves made visible for an instant, the rate of propagation of the images seeming to be about that of sound. The appearance is analogous to the air waves seen above heated roofs.

TRINIDAD'S ASPHALT LAKE.

One of the World's Hot Spots, Torrid, Desolating and Enervating.

In "The Path of the Conquistadores" Lindon Bates, Jr., tells of the famous asphalt lake of Trinidad. He says:

"The struggling village at its edge is an extraordinary spectacle. Not a house but is twisted out of plumb. The land is the source of never ending litigation, because the slowly shifting currents of the pitch bottom in a few years more yards and gardens on to other men's property, distort boundaries into every possible shape, carry landmarks a hundred yards away."

"The abandonment of desolation is like. In spots a palm killed by the asphalt droops disconsolately. A few tufts of grass have secured a footing in places. But for the rest it is a solid mass of black, dull, evil smelling pitch, with pools of water here and there, in which swim little parboiled fishes. Almost any of the hot spots in the world, bar none, this can be backed."

"A wicked looking blacksnake six feet long glides into the bushes near the margin of the lake. It has been amusing itself on the asphalt. No wonder the serpents are supposed to be creatures of the devil. As for myself, fifteen minutes stay takes away every bit of vitality we can summon. Not enough interest is left in life to inquire what the negroes having with nut-ticks at the asphalt receive in wages. They earn the pay, whatever it is."

"The lake is likely to a hundred acres in extent now, but it is gradually shrinking with the removal of the enormous quantities that have been taken out."

RIVERS AND GREAT CITIES.

Wherein the Thames and London Are Different From Others.

London without the Thames is unthinkable. Not only is it the source of the great wealth and trade of the world's metropolises, but it brings food and drink to its many millions. Yet this is not the case with other great cities of the world whose rivers have had little to do in the building of their fame and position. In "The River of London" Mr. Hilaire Belloc points the contrast:

"Little sea borne traffic reaches Paris by the Seine, the Tiber could never be a street for Rome; Vienna neglects the Danube; Antwerp protects no great crossing nor has ever been the nucleus of a state, and Rouen, the nearest parallel, was not the strategic pivot of Normandy nor ever formed, as London forms, a chief fraction in the economic power of its province. The two rivers which are sacred to Lyons never fed that town; the Rhone watered but did not lead to Arles."

The towns of Lombardy depend upon the fertility of the Po valley, but the stream is nothing to their commerce or to their political eminence, and Milan and Venice and Turin are independent of it. Saragossa was the mistress of Aragon, but the Ebro did not make Saragossa, and, as for Madrid, the trickle which runs below Madrid is best described in the story of the Spanish patriot who was dying of thirst after battle, but upon being offered a cup of water said, 'Give it to the poor Manchegos—the river upon which Madrid stands.'"

A Sincere Provider.

Bobbie M. was visiting with a neighbor while his mother was in the city on a shopping trip. Bobbie and two other children played at housekeeping in the backyard, and in the course of the housekeeping Maria believed she needed supplies.

"Bobbie, you go for some ice cream and lemons at the grocery," commanded Maria, and Bobbie obediently trotted into the alley at the rear, as Maria believed, "for playin' he was goin' to the grocery."

Ten minutes later, Mrs. S., with whom Bobbie was visiting, went to the telephone, and the voice of her grocer inquired:

"I guess Bobbie has lost the money for the ice cream and lemons he came after. I can't had any change in his pockets. Or did you want the things changed?"—Indianapolis News.

Professor James B. Rice of the poultry department at Cornell is proud of the remarkable egg laying record of Cornell Supreme, the prize hen in the poultry department at the State College of Agriculture. She has laid 600 eggs in three years, the highest sustained yield, Professor Rice says, for three years, so far as he knows. The 600 eggs weighed 36.18 pounds, or 25.82 times the weight of the hen.

The Isolated Continent

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

COPYRIGHT, 1913, BY W. G. CHAPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

Then the matrix sat down. Astra, in her own room in the crystal palace, saw and heard through the electro-tylograph the whole proceedings of the New York continental party in the Hippodrome. She had raised her hand to disconnect her machine when a man from the audience asked for the right to speak.

According to the rules of the party, all who desired had the right to make an address, so this request was readily granted. Since no one asked for this man's name, it was not disclosed. He walked calmly forward, closely followed by a short, fat man who mounted the platform. This tall man was dressed in a gray traveling suit, instead of mourning, but on his arm was a broad black band.

All the attention of the great audience was centered on the athletic figure and the sunburnt, frank face of the young man. Astra's instrument, showed these details to her as plainly as if she were sitting in one of the boxes, and she was thrilled as his eyes seemed to look straight into hers. "Ladies and Gentlemen," he began. "I have a message to deliver to the political party in which I believe; do not ask me how I happen to be the instrument that was selected to convey this message to you, but I beg of you to seriously consider my words. 'You have all heard or read about the warning that came to our dead, the ex-President, Hannibal Prudent.'"

There was silent emotion in his voice when he mentioned that name. "That warning is fifty years old. Our enemies, defeated fifty years ago, have found a way to break through our isolation; they have spent these fifty years planning revenge. We can, through Hannibal Prudent's efforts, put off their invasion for one year, which will give us a little time to prepare for defense. Continentalists, my brothers in country, spread alarums and faith through the mighty land, as God has given us, just as he did fifty years ago, a man to liberate this country from the oppressor's hand. God, in his infinite goodness, has given us another instrument to repel the storming enemies."

His voice filled the great hall; his words were convincing through the sincerity of the orator.

As he opened his mouth to speak again, the large hallowback began to show many colored zigzag sparks and the audience watched it in apprehension; the whole atmosphere was charged with an inexplicable feeling of expectation. Not a person moved until the man on the platform stopped quickly down to the operating table of the electro-tylograph, and adjusted the instrument into the right receiving socket. The sparkling ceased and blurred, but discernible, a picture appeared.

As the audience started the pictures became somewhat clearer and they saw what appeared to be tremendous sea monsters lying immovable on the bottom of the ocean. The huge bulks of metal, showing unknown forms of warfare, were pointed menacingly at the silent audience, which was representative of the fifty years just past; the comparison showed clearly that the science and genius of the Europeans had only produced a perfection of death-dealing instruments, while the Americans had advanced in science, art, literature and a general development of the human race.

The great audience, which had been so enthusiastic, now sat as motionless as a bird that has been charmed by a snake, intently watching the wonderful picture that moved and changed incessantly; huge airships of an improved type, resembling the old style Zeppelins, glittered brightly, as they moved with ponderous grace.

Every conceivable form of mono and bi-plane came gliding by; and each and every form of locomotion carried unmistakable signs of their destiny—a machine of destruction.

As the pictures vanished a sigh heaved from every heart and a rustle of relaxation stirred the multitude, many turned toward the platform, hoping to see the man who had last spoken, but he was gone.

By the time the people who had been favored by a sight of the enemies' destructive forces, began to leave the Hippodrome, that young man was on his way to the capital. He was none other than Napoleon Edison.

CHAPTER III.

The Ring.

Thursday afternoon at four o'clock the clay abode of the man whose death was mourned by the continent returned to ashes. The mournful procession started toward the Crystal Palace. Gardens had been devastated by the funeral flowers; the streets were carpeted with blooms. Immediately following the coffin rode his only relative, the daughter of Hannibal Prudent, in an open carriage.

Her pale face spoke of sleepless nights and many tears, but her eyes now were dry, her classic face calm, and her carriage like that of a queen. And a queen she was, not by the right of birth or inheritance, but by the divine might that inhabited her superb body.

Astra's mind was dazed from the loss of sleep and the pomp of the funeral ceremony, and her nerves were well-nigh exhausted by the time she arrived at her crystal home. As she slowly mounted the steps her loss overwhelmed her; she had not fully realized it before. She went at once to her boudoir, locked the door and, throwing herself on a couch, sobbed bitterly. Her mind reverted to the past when the great man she had lost had played with the little girl of five years—with her; he was an old man even then; but oh, how dearly she had loved him.

Her meditations were terminated abruptly by the entrance of old John, who brought the card of Napoleon Edison. "I promised to receive him, did I not?"

"Indeed, madam," bowed the servant.

She thought for a moment.

"Take him to my father's library; I will see him there."

When Napoleon Edison entered the room he found Astra sitting before the broad desk. He stepped before her with a low bow.

"I have the honor to greet you, Miss Prudent."

The girl looked into the face of the tall, handsome man and saw in his large gray eyes an immeasurable courage. The strong, well-shaped nose curved over a pleasant mouth that suggested the stern expression of the sea. The high, broad forehead was shaded by dark brown hair. The broad shoulders and the sinewy, muscular form all gave evidence of strength, endurance and energy.

The girl did not answer for a few seconds; some strange power had cast its spell over her while she studied this man. She recognized him as the man who had talked so prophetically at the continentalists' meeting in the old Hippodrome.

"Good evening, Mr. Edison," she said at last in her low, pleasant voice. The man thought it the sweetest voice he had ever heard. Then she added: "Will you kindly be seated?"

The young man sat down without speaking, and Astra asked: "You wished to see me; may I ask you, sir, why?"

The expressive face of the young man showed a shade of disappointment as he replied quickly:

"I have a message to deliver to the political party in which I believe; do not ask me how I happen to be the instrument that was selected to convey this message to you, but I beg of you to seriously consider my words. 'You have all heard or read about the warning that came to our dead, the ex-President, Hannibal Prudent.'"

There was silent emotion in his voice when he mentioned that name. "That warning is fifty years old. Our enemies, defeated fifty years ago, have found a way to break through our isolation; they have spent these fifty years planning revenge. We can, through Hannibal Prudent's efforts, put off their invasion for one year, which will give us a little time to prepare for defense. Continentalists, my brothers in country, spread alarums and faith through the mighty land, as God has given us, just as he did fifty years ago, a man to liberate this country from the oppressor's hand. God, in his infinite goodness, has given us another instrument to repel the storming enemies."

His voice filled the great hall; his words were convincing through the sincerity of the orator.

As he opened his mouth to speak again, the large hallowback began to show many colored zigzag sparks and the audience watched it in apprehension; the whole atmosphere was charged with an inexplicable feeling of expectation. Not a person moved until the man on the platform stopped quickly down to the operating table of the electro-tylograph, and adjusted the instrument into the right receiving socket. The sparkling ceased and blurred, but discernible, a picture appeared.

As the audience started the pictures became somewhat clearer and they saw what appeared to be tremendous sea monsters lying immovable on the bottom of the ocean. The huge bulks of metal, showing unknown forms of warfare, were pointed menacingly at the silent audience, which was representative of the fifty years just past; the comparison showed clearly that the science and genius of the Europeans had only produced a perfection of death-dealing instruments, while the Americans had advanced in science, art, literature and a general development of the human race.

The great audience, which had been so enthusiastic, now sat as motionless as a bird that has been charmed by a snake, intently watching the wonderful picture that moved and changed incessantly; huge airships of an improved type, resembling the old style Zeppelins, glittered brightly, as they moved with ponderous grace.

Every conceivable form of mono and bi-plane came gliding by; and each and every form of locomotion carried unmistakable signs of their destiny—a machine of destruction.

As the pictures vanished a sigh heaved from every heart and a rustle of relaxation stirred the multitude, many turned toward the platform, hoping to see the man who had last spoken, but he was gone.

By the time the people who had been favored by a sight of the enemies' destructive forces, began to leave the Hippodrome, that young man was on his way to the capital. He was none other than Napoleon Edison.

Some Strange Power Had Cast Its Spell Over Her While She Studied the Man.

"I was under the impression that you expected me, madam, but it seems that I have been misled. However, I can tell my mission in a few words."

He rested his eyes on the girl's face and seemed still expectant, but the calm, beautiful face did not change. He continued:

"The main object of my call is this. He took a small jewel box from his pocket, and opening it, placed it on the desk before Astra. Resting on the purple pad in the box was a sparkling, white object, a small ring in the form of a spiral; one piece of scrollwork woven into a shape that formed the letter 'A' to take the place of the jewel.

No jewel decorated the ring; the material it was made of was more brilliant than diamonds; it sparkled in all the colors of the rainbow, notwithstanding its smooth surface.

Astra could not repress an exclamation of surprise: "Ah, how beautiful!" She leaned over the desk, admiring the working colors.

Edison smiled slightly and waited until the girl was ready to turn from the dazzling ring to him. She took the ring in her hand and saw that it was as transparent, clear and colorless as crystal; without that sparkling effect it would have been invisible.

She slowly laid it down again and looked questioningly at the man sitting before her. She did not know that while she was admiring the ring his eyes had rested on her yearningly, expressing love and admiration. Or was it adoration?

He smiled strangely at her and said: "If I read your questioning gaze aright, you want to know the meaning of my gift, a gift that I have brought from afar for the daughter of Hannibal Prudent." He placed a peculiar accent on the last four words.

"I thank you, sir, very much," she replied.

"It is a present for you, and through you to the whole American continent," Astra's face expressed surprise.

"I will have to be more explicit. I will have to tell you more about it. May I ask you to let me have the ring for a moment?"

THEFT OF SECRET OF WORLD'S GREATEST DREADNAUGHT AROUSES UNCLE SAM'S IRE.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Following the sensation of the theft of the plans of the new dreadnought, Pennsylvania, from the navy department, renewed efforts were made to recover the papers and find the culprit. The plans contained the secret of Rear Admiral Twining, it was said that they would be of value only to a foreign government in case of war with the United States. If this secret were known it would enable the gunners of opposing ships to cripple the great battleship at once by directing its shot at the exact vital spot in the great hull. The fire control is operated from the masts of a battleship.

March this coming year. This is the 15th of September. The Isolator Law, existing will last until the coming summer and you will hear from me between now and then; indeed, you can depend on me when the crucial moment arrives. If you will permit me I will report whenever I can; that will not be often. I will supply you with information from time to time to what is going on on the other side, and suggestions that you can use, if you desire, for defense, should it prove necessary."

Edison stepped for a second, bit his lip thoughtfully, then rose.

"You don't know, Miss Prudent, how much I appreciate the fact that you look upon my intentions with approval. Intuitively knowing that they are noble and the outgrowth of your father's teachings, I am sorry I came too late to tell him the good news—that war is destined to lose its foothold throughout the world."

"I hope it will cease forever," interrupted Miss Prudent.

"The element that ring is made of will drive it from land and from sea, but carries it into the air."

"But if no one knows the secret?"

"There are no secrets, Miss Prudent; there are many things we don't know yet, but there are no secrets. Nature is an open book to those who can read and understand."

"Again you are right, Mr. Edison."

"Then, with your permission, I will go. I hope that the service I am offering to our continent will be accepted as freely as I am offering it."

"I can assure you of that, as the nominee for the presidential chair." She offered her hand again and Napoleon Edison kissed it reverently. He bowed once more and started toward the door. Miss Prudent hesitated a moment—a question was on her lips; but as she hesitated it was too late; the visitor was gone.

"Clayth—Clayth!" she sighed, more than uttered, and looked at the chair that had a short moment ago held that splendid man.

It seemed to her as though the stranger had carried away something—something? What? She did not know. She sat down before the desk and taking the ring in her hand looked at it, and finally she slipped it on her finger. It fitted perfectly.

Then she looked at it more closely and saw some small tracings on it. She could not distinguish the lines with her unaided eyes, so took a magnifying glass and examined it curiously. A cry of joy left her lips as she deciphered the strange word "Clayth."

By some coincidence Napoleon Edison, emerging from the portal, again encountered the man he had met three days before; the only difference was that this time he was leaving and Ambassador Hale was coming.

The tall man with those ferret-like eyes, fox nose and brittle mustache was evidently surprised. As he passed the porter's gate he asked who the stranger was. The porter could not remember; but it was a name that made him think of Napoleon; whether it was Bonaparte or Caesar he could not recall.

Mr. Hale was received in the green room.

Astra had a peculiar dislike for that color, not in nature, but in furnishings and clothing; and generally received people she did not like in the green room. That room had a depressing effect on her mentality, and the people who visited her there soon left.

"I have come this time, my dear Astra, to congratulate you. I wanted to be the first. You are nominated by the continentalists, and there is no doubt but you will be elected; there is hardly any opposition on the sectionalists' part. Whom could they put up against you, my dear Astra?"

He pressed the hand of the girl warmly. He knew that he had to win her love or he would never reach the goal he was longing for.

"I wish you would consider me your very best friend, my dear. Consult me any time you please. Your wisdom and judgment is great. The whole continent is looking at you as the deliverer; still, once in a while the word of an experienced statesman will help."

"Indeed, Mr. Hale, I assure you that I will ever need your kindly offered help. I will call on you."

The intimate conversation did not last long, as other visitors arrived and spoiled Ambassador Hale's ardently looked for opportunity.

Before Astra fell asleep, she kissed the glittering ring on which the word "Clayth" was faintly engraved.

That evening Napoleon Edison, accompanied by his short friend, sat in a compartment of the fourteen-hour Frisco limited, flying toward the West; the train that was shot through the tube by compressed air was so perfect that not a rumble was heard, or a quiver felt.

Napoleon Edison bent over an outspread plan showing an object of peculiar construction. His companion watched him for a while, then fell asleep. Edison looked at the fat man's nodding head, and turned the light lower, so that it fell only on his bright hair.

He sat studying those lines that ran straight, curved and oblique; they formed a picture that was not intended—the outline, the details of a serene, strong face—Astra's.

The train shot steadily toward the Golden Gate.

report slid downward, jumping down steep slopes, and soon landed in the valley. He took a peculiar field glass from his knapsack and directed it toward the great peak, moving it until he found a spot that looked to the unaided eye like a red dot on the mountain side. It was the deserted castle of the great Prince Leopold, once reigning prince of the kingdom of Bavaria.

When he had focused the glass, he saw a round, ruddy cheeked man rubbing his hands vigorously.

"It must be somewhat cool there," smiled the sportsman.

He drew a red handkerchief and made some circular movements in the air with the fluttering linen, always watching through his glass. Then, with a satisfied expression, he placed the glass and kerchief in their respective places and started toward the town.

The narrow, winding streets were almost deserted and he used his skills even through the town.

There were several hotels around the square; the Golden Eagle and the Red Star were the most promising looking, and he selected the latter. Unfastening the straps of the satchel, he cast them over his shoulder and entered the famous old hotel.

At the sound of the stranger's footsteps in the hall a big, white-aproned man, whose head was covered with a Turkish fez, appeared in the doorway at the end of the hall; in his right hand he held a murderous looking knife and in the left a fork. He greeted the newcomer with great respect; it was surprising to see a guest at this time of the year. The man of the skills leaned his knapsack and the satchel against the wall and said, "Guten morgen, Herr Wirth!"

The big German threw fork and knife on a table and rubbing his hands on his apron to remove the grease, took the stranger's satchel and carried it into the office. There he put a long, official blank of reporting paper before him, together with pen and ink.

It took a long time for the stranger to fill out all the somewhat important questions, but at last it was done. On the last line he wrote in large, round characters the name:

"Chevalier Bonaparte de Leon."

"What can I do for you, chevalier?" asked the hotel-keeper, who had used the time to remove his apron and put on a clean coat.

"First of all, I want some breakfast, then a room, as I would like to spend a few days here."

The host's face shone with pleasure and he led his guest into the small dining-room.

The chevalier's eyes wandered around searchingly; they seemed to penetrate into every nook and corner. The host returned, followed by a girl, who put a snow-white cover on one of the tables, then steaming hot rolls were brought in with coffee, butter, honey and some eggs.

The chevalier ate heartily; the early morning exercise had given him a splendid appetite. When he had finished, the host offered him some cigars, but he smilingly refused, assuring him that he never used them.

"They are real Saharan, chevalier." "Saharan? Is that a new brand?"

"Not exactly; we have had it for ten years, ever since the successful irrigation of the desert. I understand that it is even better than the once famous Havana."

The stranger looked at the host thoughtfully, then with some hesitation.

He saw many interesting things with his extremely powerful glass, but at almost every town that they passed he observed military maneuvers, notwithstanding the cold and deep snow. "Oh, what a waste!" he thought, then retired into the large saloon, because the wind had risen and was unpleasantly cold.

He sat down at the reading table and looked through a number of periodicals. There he found pictures of almost all the monarchs and also a very good picture of Count von Wendenstein. Just below this picture was an article that did not speak very highly of this genius. The paper was ultra-socialistically inclined, and the article pointed out the faultiness of the militarism of which the count was the advocate.

The chevalier took out his little notebook and wrote the name of the author there. The paper was edited in Berlin and he did not anticipate much trouble in finding Paul Kalmar through the editorial office.

PIMPLES IN BLOTCHES ON FACE

Some on Neck. Hard Scab. Red and Sore. Face Hard to Shave. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Cured of Pimples and Blackheads.

Bloomington, Pa.—"It was in July of 1908 when I started to feel something sore on my neck and it got so sore that I was advised to have the hair cut. I did so but in about two weeks I began to break out with pimples, and later blackheads came. The pimples were in blotches all over my face and some places on my neck. They formed a hard scab and were always itchy and very sore and made my face hard to shave. I treated some more thinking it would help me, but instead it made them worse. I also tried a salve and it didn't do one bit of good. Then I tried Cuticura.

"After having spent enough money to buy a new face, I gave up. But one day I noticed the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I used them and they soon began to help me and after using the treatment for about two months my face began to clear and I was cured of pimples and blackheads. I was troubled with them for three years before I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Frank B. Emery, Dec. 28, 1911.

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, itching, burning palms and shapely nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Soak hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear old, loose gloves during the night. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

A Tall Young Man on Skis Slid Down From One of the Snow-Covered Side Hills.

What is the name of the engineer, who planned that project? I have quite forgotten."

"You are not a German, chevalier, otherwise you would know the man whom all the German-speaking nations regard with hope; his name is Count von Wendenstein."

The young man started, but recovered himself quickly. "How foolish! I have nearly split my coffee. Yes, Wendenstein; I remember the name now."

"He is our Bismarck, Moltke and Edison, in one person."

The young man stared at the host for a second. "Quite a remarkable man."

"Indeed, sir, he was selected as commander in chief by the International Federation, for the war against America."

"I am sure it is a very happy selection."

"Well, sir, he is a great man indeed, but I do wish, and I am sure many others wish so too, that instead of military, he would devote his energies to the betterment of the people."

"To industrial, agricultural and financial developments; is that what you mean?"

"Yes, sir, and above all else, to lifting the burdens from the citizens. You

SEES GREATER SAFETY IN MINING BY ELECTRICITY

Bureau of Mines Expert Looks for Improved Devices and Corresponding Decrease of Risks.

H. H. Clark, electrical engineer of the Bureau of Mines, in his paper on "Safeguarding the Use of Electricity in Mines" read before the Pittsburgh meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers which met April 18 and 19, made the following remarks relative to the hope that mines will be safer when certain electrical developments become more general and are modified to meet the needs of the situation.

"There are, however, some ways in which it seems possible for electricity to decrease the risks now attendant upon mining work. There is one piece of electrical equipment which may almost be considered as a safety device and there are three others which, by substitution for more dangerous equipment and methods, promote the safety of underground workers.

"First may be mentioned the telephone, which is of use in spreading the news of trouble, in calling aid to the injured, and in assisting in mine-rescue work after disasters. Next may be mentioned portable electric lamps for use of miners. The development of such lamps is just beginning in the United States. At the date of this writing no device has been fully developed and standardized for insuring absolute freedom from gas ignition by lamps of this sort.

"There can be no doubt, however, that in the near future some such device will be developed and then the electric lamp will become safer than the locked safety lamp, although it has not the latter's ability to detect the presence of explosive gas. The statement that the electric lamp may be made safer than the safety lamp is based upon the fact that the parts of a safety lamp may be improperly ranged and ignition of gas occur as the result. The records show that this has happened on more than one occasion.

"The greatest benefits to be derived from the electric lamp as a safety device will be in those mines where the electric lamp supplants the open-flame lamp and thereby eliminates a real fire hazard.

"Next may be mentioned the firing of shots by electrical means. There can be no doubt that the firing of shots by properly designed and operated electrical shot-firing devices and equipment is safer than firing them by fuses or other devices which ignite explosives by means of sparks or flames.

"Finally it may be suggested that

L. F. RUTH BUYS MORE GREENE COUNTY COAL

Increases His Holdings in Wayne and Gilmore Townships; Speculation Continues Quiet Active.

Greene County coal continues active in smaller lots. Several large deals by operating interests are still pending. There is a disposition on the part of some of these prospective buyers to wait and see what Washington is going to do to the steel and iron business before making any further investments in raw material, but others indicate a purpose to close up dealing the investment a good one even though it may be followed for a period.

L. F. Ruth, the Connellsville banker, has added 180 acres to his holdings in Gilmore and Wayne townships. This purchase was made from William F. Patterson and the price paid was $275 per acre making a consideration of $49,500. Mr. Ruth bought 890 acres from Mr. Patterson in the same locality, December 9, last, paying approximately $250,000. Together with some 900 acres acquired last summer, this makes Mr. Ruth's holdings in this field over 2,000 acres. He bought for investment. He is not only a banker, but a coke operator of experience and a judge of the value of coal.

E. D. Patterson of Waynesburg, has purchased 51 acres of coal and surface, in Whiteley township, two miles west of Newton, from Mrs. Thomas Grove of Rogersville and T. E. Moore of Ohio at $350 an acre: total consideration, $17,850.

D. S. Walton of Waynesburg, has sold to Albert Rush of East Waynesburg, 18-213 interest in 33 tracts of coal in Franklin and Wayne townships; consideration $4,500.

L. G. Gray of West Alexander has sold to I. N. Cornwall of Gilmore township, one-seventh interest in 55.8 acres of coal in Springhill; consideration $775.

F. Riley Huffman of Waynesburg, George Huffman of Jackson township; J. H. Wise and W. E. Minor of Pittsburg have sold to E. F. Morris of Waynesburg, 147 acres of coal in Allepo township; consideration $1.

T. J. Wisecarver of Waynesburg, has sold to J. V. Thompson of Uniontown, live acres and 87 perches of coal in Morris township; consideration $750.

James E. Sayers, executor of the estate of the late E. M. Sayers, deceased, has sold to Mary Sayers Koehn one-half interest in 84 acres of coal in Allepo township; consideration $4,305.

MILEAGE IS INCREASED.

P. R. R. System Had 25,695 Miles of Track.

The annual report of transportation lines of the Pennsylvania railroad system shows that the company now has 11,644 miles of lines and 25,695 miles of track. There are about 100,000 shareholders interested in these lines, or nearly four for every mile of track.

A compilation shows that the system paid out last year $188,748,312 in wages, or $7,346 for every mile of track, and that there are more than eight employees for every mile. While the present mileage of the system is only 1,681 greater than in 1902, there has been an increase of 1,355 miles in second track, 277 in third track and 224 in fourth track.

SCHOOLS ARE FIRE-TRAPS.

Uncle Sam Warns Authorities to Take Proper Precautions.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—School houses that are firetraps continue to be erected throughout the country, despite past tragedies and the United States Bureau of Education today opened for better construction of buildings in which youths are educated.

Ohio, Massachusetts and Kansas are the only states given credit for seeking safer construction and better safeguards against fire horrors in schools. The remainder of the country, the bureau says, fails to take necessary precautions.

A Boy's Ambition. Students of human nature have found that a boy's ambition is determined by the ideals placed before him in early life. When a boy sees a soldier, he wants to join the army; when he sees a drum major, he wants to be a drum major. One of the best ideals to hold before your boy's mind is a prosperous citizen who saves a part of his income and puts the money in the bank.
